Prayer for Black History Observance

O LORD, You have heard the anguished cries of our ancestors. Their sounds echo and penetrate time to remind us that they were brutally captured and forcibly enslaved, as they left the peaceful womb of their African homeland.

“Stony the road we trod.”

O Sovereign LORD, You have seen the millions of dark bodies buried beneath the tumultuous waves of the deep—bodies of African men and women who held the seeds of blessings. You have seen women’s dreams for united families vanish, as they were sold at auction blocks. You have seen the legacy of African American families decimated and demeaned by those who have attempted to control our destiny.

“Bitter the chastening rod, felt in the days when hope unborn had died.”

O Gracious God, You have ever ignited the sparks within us into a blazing demand for freedom, equality, and justice. For freedom Harriet Tubman risked her life in sleepless nights, as she led her people to freedom. For equality Rosa Parks and civil rights activists fought and gave their lives. For justice, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and countless thousands stood at the Lincoln Memorial and have marched to the beat of Thy truth.

“Yet with a steady beat, have not our weary feet, come to the place for which our fathers sighed?”

O Merciful God, You have seen our tears, have been pained by the evil of human hearts, yet have loved humanity enough that You sent Your only Son to identify with the outcasts, the marginalized, and the rejected—to walk where we walk, to feel what we feel, to die that we might live. As the cries of Jesus pierced Your heart, so have the cries of Your people—cries from different cultures and in different languages.

“God of our weary years, God of our silent tears.”

O God of our Salvation, You have answered us during our exodus from Africa and have wiped every tear from our eyes during our exile in captivity. By the anointing of Thy Spirit, our foreparents and elders have dared to dream that one day, on these shores, we would become politicians, preachers, educators, doctors, writers, scientists, artists, and so much more.

“Lest our feet stray from the places, our God, where we met Thee.”

Our ancestors and elders’ hard work, courage, convictions, and belief in You have paved the way for our emancipation and education. Yet we give You all the praise—it is You and You alone who have liberated us! You have set us free! “Free at last, free at last, thank You, God Almighty, that we are free at last!”

“Lest our hearts drunk with the wine of the world we forget Thee. Shadowed beneath Thy hand, may we forever stand true to Thee, our God, and true to our native land.”
